Consultant in anaesthesia and pain management

NHS
Royal Devon
University Healthcare
NHS Foundation Trust

Looking to take part in research and innovation, service development or teaching within a Trust that prides itself on patient care, learning and rapid career progression? The Royal Devon is seeking to appoint a consultant in anaesthesia and pain management to our services based at North Devon District Hospital (NDDH) in Barnstaple.

Our anaesthetics, critical care and pain management department is friendly, successful and ambitious. Consultants will be supported by an established team of specialist nurses, physiotherapists, a psychologist, OT, social prescriber and physical exercise therapist. The Trust has an electronic patient record (EPIC), a multi-million-pound research facility, a significant development budget and big plans for the future. We will support new consultants to co-design a viable job plan and to develop innovative new services or pursue research and teaching interests.

The Royal Devon is committed to developing services in Barnstaple and bringing the very best clinicians to Devon. We are based in the South West of England, in a county renowned for its natural beauty, schools, infrastructure and quality of life. If you are interested in finding out more about the positions available, we'd love to hear from you and would be delighted to host your family for an exploratory weekend visit.

To find out more, please read the attached consultant information pack, visit our website www.royaldevon.nhs.uk or contact Emily Simpson on 07958 931414 for an informal chat about this fantastic opportunity.
